POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

We predict trouble for Gov. Hearnes income tax bill and any increase that the Sikeston school board may ask for if the votes have prepared their Federal and State Income reports before the election to be held on Tuesday, April 7th.

OUR MAN "OR ELSE"

One of the most revealing bits of testimony to be given at the trial of the so-called "Chicago Eight" was an amazing admission (or was it meant to be boasting?) by one Sam Brown, a self-appointed leader of the "peace" movement.

The "Chicago Eight," now on trial at the U.S. District Court, are charged with conspiring to create a riot at the Democratic National Convention in 1968. The "Eight," for the record, are; Rennie Davis and Tom Hayden, both 29, and both founders of SDS; David Dellinger, 53, national "Mobilization" chairman; Abbie Hoffman, 31, who calls himself a Yippie; Jerry Rubin, 31, a co-founder of the Yippies; Bobby Seale, 32, California Chairman of the Black Panthers; and two paid employees of the Mobilization, Lee Weiner, 30, and John Froines, 30.

Sam Brown, not one of the accused, was a member of the staff of the McCarthy for President Committee in Chicago at the time of the violent riots, and thus testified as a witness. And he declared that their demonstrations in Chicago would possibly have been called off if it had appeared that there was any chance of the nomination going to Senator Eugene McCarthy (D-Minn).

We are inclined to disbelieve this rather brash assumption on the part of Mr. Brown, who, after all, cannot claim to have had control over the rioters. But his statement is shocking in its implications.

If we understand him correctly, what Mr. Brown is saying is that the "reward" for the nomination of "their" candidate would have been peace in the streets; the price to be paid for not doing so was riot in the streets, violence, bloodshed, destruction of property and general mayhem. Nominate the minority candidate; disregard the will of the people who elected their delegates to the convention - or else. Get out of Vietnam; disregard the will of the majority of the Vietnamese people and turn the country over to the minority Communists - or else.

"Do it our way - or else" has an old, ominous ring to it. It has been the battle cry of would-be tyrants and dictators from time immemorial. Whatever the name, the kind of government established by the threat of force and violence is not pretty.

We really didn't know we had so many bridge clubs in Sikeston until we ran the letter from the Wednesday bridge club.

We have received letters from the Monday bridge club, the Tuesday bridge club, the Thursday bridge club, all unsigned except the name of the Bridge Club.

But they all failed to send in a list of the bridge club membership, which the Wednesday bridge club did.

So of course we published these letters in the waste basket as we do all letters which do not have a name signed to them.

While we agree with most of the comment in the letters we do not care to give the writers who apparently are afraid to sign their names the public notice to the reading public.

The Editor puts in his page in the paper what he thinks about people, and things. The writer of unsigned letters cannot dodge the responsibility of their own thoughts.

The Pittsburgh Headlight-Sun reports that Pittsburgh has lost a poultry processing plant for which a federal loan of $650,000 already had been secured for an operation that would have had a payroll of nearly $1 million annually, employing up to 325 persons.

The city turned down an opportunity to get the plant on the basis of an engineering report. But some important local sources which have been active in industrial development for the city said they were not informed of the industrial opportunity.

The firm has now decided to remain in Iola, expanding its facilities there.

Why did the city turn it down? Mayor Rex Bowers said the city commission, after studying the engineering report based upon the figures the prospect supplied, decided the proposal as it existed would have overtaken both the city's water treatment plant and the sewage disposal plant so much that both would have had to be expanded immediately.

"This would have been a big expense," Bowers said. "I am very much in favor of new industry, but we must consider our local citizens and their ability to pay."

We bet there are rednecks in Pittsburgh.

NEW GOP GOVERNORS

With the inauguration of Republican governors in New Jersey and Virginia, Tuesday, Jan. 20, the GOP will control 32 of 50 statehouses - the most it has controlled since 1920. William T. Cahill will end 16 years of Democratic rule in the Garden State, while Linwood Holton will become the Old Dominion's first Republican governor since Reconstruction. Nine of the country's 10 most populous states (the exception is Texas) will be governed by Republicans in 1970.

Both Cahill and Holton face tax problems. Alarmed by a sales permit and a $50 bond.

a prospective deficit of $300 million in New Jersey's budget, Cahill already has called for an increase in the state sales tax from 3 to 5 per cent. Holton's task is to persuade the Democratic-controlled General Assembly to approve what amounts to a partial reduction of the commonwealth's sales tax. During last autumn's election campaign, Holton had proposed a $9 per person tax rebate to relieve the burden of the levy on food and nonprescription medicines. Selective tax increases in other areas might prove necessary to keep the budget in balance.

The Virginia General Assembly is expected to approve - for the second straight year - a package of six constitutional amendments which would then be put before the voters in a referendum. One of the amendments would permit the commonwealth to abandon the pay-as-you-go fiscal policy adhered to by the moribund Byrd Organization. If approved, the amendment would allow issuance of general obligation bonds and of revenue bonds - up to a limit of between $600 million and $700 million in each case. Virginia thus would join the buy-now, pay-later society in which the rest of the country lives.

In a post-election analysis of the Holton victory, the Ripon Forum (December 1969) cautioned the Republican governor to remember "that the endorsements that put him over the top were anti-Byrd, rather than pro-Holton." The Forum added: "His election was a victory, but it was not a mandate, either for him or for the Republican party. If Holton and his party truly seek such a mandate, they now have four years in which to write their own."

"RIGHT TO WORK BASIC IN POSTAL RESHUFFLING" ... The principle cannot be compromised. Whatever Congress does in this regard will provide a precedent, of sorts, for teachers, trash collectors, police, firemen, nurses, and countless other public employees. So long as all citizens are compelled to support government, all citizens must be free to seek government jobs on their own merit. Here at least, in public employment, the right to work has to be preserved absolutely; it can't be put out on the table as an issue to be bargained away."

Recent research by the Traffic Institute of Northwestern University has come up with some interesting data about flat tires.

For instance, it found that more than 99 per cent of us automobile drivers apparently are able to cope with a flat tire or blowout. Women, however, are about four times as likely as all drivers to have an accident after a "tire disablement," with women under 20 having the highest "risk index."

The report also indicates that how a driver reacts to a flat is probably more important than on what wheel the flat tire occurs. Also, there seemed to be no norm as to what direction a car veers after a flat tire on any particular wheel.

Other findings:
*The higher a tire's temperature, the higher the risk of a flat. (A good reason to make sure your tires are fully-inflated before you drive, particularly if you plan a high-speed freeway trip. An under-inflated tire generates more heat. And be sure to check your tire pressure when tires are cold).

*Rear tires are more likely to go flat than front tires.
*Bald tires are 50 times more likely to go flat than new ones. Danger increases sharply after the point at which your tread measures 1/16th of an inch.

*A check of 1,700 vehicles on a 190-mile segment of the Illinois Tollway, where the study was conducted, revealed that 607 of them, or about 34 per cent, had some type of tire deficiency.

When is the last time you visually inspected your tires, and personally checked the pressure in each one? It's a good idea, too, to carry your own tire gauge as readings on filling-station tire gauges can vary to a high degree.

A fact sheet on inflation should lessen our nausea when we read the astronomical fees athletes receive when they turn professional, says Mr. Buck Herzog, writer for the Milwaukee Sentinel. In 1931, he says, Babe Ruth received a salary of $80,000 from the Yankees; in 1967 Willie Mays was paid $125,000 by the Giants. Who was better off? Herzog points out that on his $80,000 salary, Ruth paid $11,500 in federal income taxes, giving him a take-home pay of $68,500. On Mays' $125,000 salary, only $52,000 was left in take-home pay after federal income taxes. In addition, consumer prices today are about 2.2 times as high as they were in 1931. In terms of purchasing power, Mays' salary was worth only about a third of Ruth's. Today, if Mays were to receive as much purchasing power as the Babe did in 1931 ($68,500) he would have to be paid $454,000.

Victim of Assault and Attempted Rape... Because She Did Not Listen

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 16-year-old girl who has been told death of their kids. They cater a dozen times never to ride with them, bribe them and live in strangers but I paid no attention, fear on incurring their disfavor. I was sure those terrible things I read about in the papers always for an unpopular position. But happen to someone else. It was he missed the most important 11:00 o'clock at night, and point - that the kids are not to getting cold. I decided to see blame. It's the parents.

Children are born unspoiled got into the first car that and lovable. They are taught to stopped - a blue sedan. A be rude, inconsiderate, middle-aged man was driving, destructive and obnoxious. They Within two minutes I knew had are constantly testing to see how made a big mistake. The man far they can go - how much looked as if he'd been drinking, they can get away with. When He asked me some crazy question. Suddenly he turned into a side street then onto a dirt road.

I thought of jumping out, but the doors were locked and he was driving pretty fast. Suddenly, he stopped behind a clump of trees, dragged me out of the car and tried to rape me. I managed to get free and ran for my life. He chased me and I fell. Before I could get up, he literally pulled me up by the hair and began to beat me to "make me behave." I got loose and started to run again - this time into a barbed-wire fence. Somehow I crawled through a hole in the fence and hid behind a clump of bushes. He lost sight of me so I kept my head down and remained still. I must have lain there 20 minutes when I heard his car drive off.

I then began to walk home. It was the longest walk of my life. I had hurt my knee and my head was bleeding where he hit me. I stopped at the first house I saw and called the police. They came and got me and drove me home. I'm still recovering from sprains and bruises, but I'm lucky to be alive.

If my letter can save just one girl from going through what I experienced, it will be worth the effort it took to write it. - Dumb and Lucky

Dear D & L: Congratulations on being alive, that is.

Dear Ann Landers: I'll bet you've had a zillion letters from people who are furious with Los Angeles' Bob - the man who wrote to say he doesn't like cats - it was children he hates.

Ruby Queen, the beet pictured, is an outstanding variety to grow, tastes best when harvested at half-grown stage.

Beets are hard to beat as a vegetable because they're good to look at and delicious to eat. Even youngsters with an aversion to other vegetables fill up on beets, especially if they're home grown and picked while still tiny and luscious.

Some varieties are grown not for their roots but for their quick-maturing leaves which many gourmets consider the most delicious of all greens.

But most gardeners use both tops and roots, serving them at the same time, as two different vegetables.

If you want beets for roots, you'll be interested in Ruby Queen for fine flavor, in Pacemaker because it is the first hybrid beet of table quality, sprouts quickly and is edible only 58 days from sowing.

You'll also want to know about the new golden beet which has golden roots instead of red ones and therefore doesn't bleed in the water when cooked.

The tops have a more delicate flavor than those of most red beets and will thus endear themselves to people who think beets are too "strong" in taste.

for four to five months in getting their gain for market acceptance. Schwartz builds up the corn and cuts down on silage in the ration as the cattle progress.

Schwartz was born Oct. 29, 1928, on his parents' farm east of his present location. He well remembers the reverses suffered by his father and farmer friends in the Great Depression. That experience has contributed to making him conservative and cautious in his present operation, he says.

"Another steady influence is the recollection of how I got started in the year I married," he says. "My wife, Genevieve, and I had $85 between us when we launched our farming career on 125 acres. We were aided by a loan from the Federal Land Bank, and I certainly am grateful for that assistance." The improvements since 1960 are valued at about $100,000.

Schwartz put in a total confinement system with automatic feeders, twin mounds with roofs and slats over a huge underground storage area for manure.

These facilities have worked out about as he anticipated, bringing the daily animal carrying capacity of the lot to more than 700 head, the 41-year-old farmer said. Last year, with his new facilities, he sold 1660 steers and heifers that were brought to market weight.

What has caught him completely by surprise is the nationwide attention that his operation has attracted, starting with a story on one phase of the equipment in a nationally circulated magazine.

Since then he has had a parade to his door. On Tuesday, for instance, a group of farmers and county agents came from all parts of Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas. He reviewed highlights of his operation for a Missouri Cattle Feeding Seminar on Jan. 15 on the campus of the University of Missouri at Columbia.

"And would you believe," he adds with a wry smile, "that I get my share of visits from feed salesmen. They face a rough challenge because Schwartz produces almost all of his feed requirements on 750 acres he owns or rents.

For the improvement, Schwartz contracted for two manure-pits each eight feet deep that can hold nearly 435,000 gallons of material. Because of the capacity, the operator only has to clean them twice a year, using the fertilizer for his grain fields. Slats are over the pits on each side of the belt-line feeder.

Dirt excavated to make the pits was used for the mounds on each side of the feed line. The cattle standing on the mounds work the manure down the slope into the pits.

The installation of the new facilities climaxed a steady expansion of the cattle feeding operation that started in 1955.

"I had been farming for five years by that time," he explains. "My operation was centered on row crops. I'm not one who enjoys sitting down doing nothing, and I was casting about for something to do in the winter months.

"One year I had tried work off the farm, but there were disadvantages to that. Well, in 1955, I bought 17 heifers to feed out. I paid 19 cents for them and sold them the next spring for 16 cents a pound.

"However, it was an interesting experience, despite the prices. And I decided that it surely couldn't be this bad all the time. From the very outset, thought, I realized that cattle feeding has its ups and downs and a serious operator had better have some reserves for adversity."

In 1960, Schwartz built his

Did you know that a popular fallacy is, if a little medicine does well, a larger amount will do better? This is a dangerous self-medication, as an overdose may be worse than the disease itself. When relief is not immediate, resist the temptation to increase the dosage.

F.T. RICHARDSON, ALASKA (AHTNC) - Army Private First Class Louis F. White, 20, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Walter L. White, Charleston, Mo., is one of the men from the 172nd Infantry Brigade at Ft. Richardson, Alaska, who are participating in a 12-day winter training program in some of the rugged territory in the state.

Russell, describing Eisenhower as a president who "was in a way naive, although he was forthright," said he realized the President was talking to him as a friend of long-standing and "I never have quoted him on what he said."

Russell said Franklin D. Roosevelt "had too much faith, too much confidence in himself. A man ought to have a few friends."

Ego, said Russell, prompted Roosevelt to "sacrifice a few of his friends."

"Roosevelt in a way was a selfish man politically," he said.

Harry Truman, Russell commented, was a man who "developed tremendously in the presidency."

The Prayer
from
The Upper Room

"Do not worry about tomorrow; it will have enough worries of its own. There is no need to add to the troubles each day brings." (Matthew 6:34 TEV)

PRAYER: O God, let not the future sap us of our strength and talent in meeting the needs of today. May we face today with the courage to keep on keeping on. In the name of Jesus who taught us that each day's difficulties are enough to deal with. Amen.

Ann Landers

Victim of Assault and Attempted Rape... Because She Did Not Listen

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 16-year-old girl who has been told death of their kids. They cater a dozen times never to ride with them, bribe them and live in strangers but I paid no attention, fear on incurring their disfavor. I was sure those terrible things I heard about in the papers always for an unpopular case happened to someone else. It was he missed the most important 11:00 o'clock at night, and point - that the kids are not to get cold. I decided to save blame. It's the parents.

Children are born unspoiled right, I did get a zillion letters from readers who were furious with Bub No. 1. But I received half a zillion letters from people who wrote as you did. But your letter was best. Thanks for writing.

Cotton wears a new face

DASHING NEW COTTON—Soft and supple cotton suede with pony-markings gives a luxurious leather look to stylish separates. In Wamsutta's new fabric, the separates include a high-shaped tunic jacket with wide cutaway lapels, belt-bottoms, an ultra-long sleeveless cardigan, and a back-zipped miniskirt. The fashionable four were designed by Young Victorian for Arpeja.

THE DUCHESS STEPS OUT in a gay print gown for "gypsy night" at a Paris nightclub. Escorting the Duchess of Windsor was veteran French entertainer Maurice Chevalier.

SCALLOPED CHICKEN
One frying hen
2/3 stick (1/3 cup) butter
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1/3 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups chicken broth
2 eggs, separated
1 cup milk
1 cup bread crumbs
Sauce:
1 cup sliced mushrooms
1/4 cup sliced pimiento olives
1/2 stick (1/4 cup) butter

Remove neck and giblets. Place chicken (whole or cut into serving pieces) in a Dutch oven. Add just enough water to cover. Cook until tender, 2 1/2 to 3 hours. Remove chicken from broth. Cool and remove meat from bones. Skim fat from broth. (After preparing this recipe, use what is left of cooked chicken in salads or casseroles; the broth in soups or sauces, A 4 to 7 pound hen will yield 4 to 6 cups cooked meat.)

Melt 2/3 stick butter in saucepan. Add onion and saute until tender. Stir in flour and salt to form paste. Add broth gradually. Cook mixture over moderate heat, stirring constantly until thickened and smooth. Beat egg yolks in medium-sized mixing bowl. Add milk and thicken broth to egg yolks. Stir in bread crumbs. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold into broth mixture. Place 3 cups cooked chicken in shallow casserole. Pour mixture over chicken. Sprinkle top with pulled bread crumbs, if desired. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 50 minutes. Prepare sauce by sauteing mushrooms and olives in 1/2 stick melted butter about 10 minutes. Cut casserole into serving portions and top with mushroom-olive sauce.

For this reason, Goodwill sends out an urgent appeal to the many good people who contribute, but tend to "wait until Spring House Cleaning Time" to make their donations. The need is the greatest during February and March. So Goodwill gratefully asks that people make an extra effort to contribute now instead of waiting until Spring.

Without a steady flow of useable and repairable discards, such as clothing, shoes, household articles, small appliances, furnishings, sporting goods, tools, in fact, anything except large appliances such as washers, refrigerators, dryers, stoves, etc., our handicapped lose hours of work because there is nothing for them to repair. So again, if at all possible, contribute your discards, things you no longer need or use, now, during February and March, when the need is so urgent. With your goods and the handicapped's will... Goodwill

Lost Star

Best-known example of a lost star, once visible but which has now disappeared, is the one called the Lost Pleiad. In ancient times, there were seven stars visible in the Pleiades without optical aid, where only six can now be seen. The seventh star is now below naked-eye visibility.

Pilots To Remain

CHICAGO (AP) — "The American League has given up now work will begin in $650,000 for Lent," a baseball club were hotel executive Edward Carlson and his civic-minded owner quipped on Ash Wednesday.

It just about sums up a stormy two days of financial baseball by the league in attempts to turn the Seattle Pilots in the direction of the goal.

But when the meetings broke up, the owners were back where they started—really back farther than that, by $650,000 worth.

What happened was this:

They reaffirmed that the franchise will remain in Seattle. The threat of antitrust suits by Seattle city officials helped make this a rather easy direction.

Part of the Carlson program called for a nonprofit factor.

"That factor could not fit into operation of a major league baseball club," said Cronin.

"We know it is going to be a hard day-to-day struggle financially for Seattle until its domed stadium complex is completed," he added. "But the rest of the league will try to help promotionally and materially—by that I mean financially, with the $650,000 loan. We will help all we can—but on the ball field we'll try to kick the hell out of them."

Daley, whose "for sale" notice brought Milwaukee and Dallas-Fort Worth into target range before the league's determination to keep the franchise in Seattle, said that I'll be very delighted" in retaining the ownership.

Of particular interest to the league in maintaining the franchise was the planned domed stadium. A $40-million bond issue has been passed and of the near soap opera situation were hotel executive Edward Carlson and his civic-minded group. They fought for the purchase of the franchise at a $9.5million price tag established by the league.

After presenting a formal application, the Carlson group spent six minutes with league owners Wednesday night and were turned down.

"We had made all the commitments that the league required from us for buying the club," Carlson said. "But our application was turned down.

Only 10 of the 42 Redbirds remain unsigned.

Torrez, a 23-year-old right-hander, has a 10-4 record and a 3.58 earned run average last season.

The 29-year-old Davalillo, who hits left-handed, was acquired by the Cardinals last May from the California Angels. He hit .265 and drove in 10 runs.

The Sikeston High School Bulldogs close the home part of their basketball season schedule this weekend with a Friday contest against the tough Poplar Bluff Mules. Friday's Northern Division conference encounters marks the final regular season home game for seniors Larry Lawrence, Ed Throop, Rob Barber, Marvin Baker.

This week's contest proves to be an exciting one to close the home season with as the Dogs Mules intense rivalry always makes for a good contest. The Mules will be seeking revenge for three defeats handed them by the Dogs last season. It seems as if semi-final round tournament contests were reserved for the Sikeston-PB squads last season as the Dogs won a semi-final victory over the Mules in the Poplar Bluff Invitational Tournament and a semi-final round win the Regionals. Along with these two tournament victories, the Dogs picked up a 4-6 regular season win on Valentine's Day last year also.

The Mules are almost the identical team that the Dogs owned last season with the Mules only loss being LeRoy Moss, a tough center and key rebounder for last season's Mules.

Copy of Flag Carried By Lewis and Clark

Presented to Hearnes

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A replica of the first United States flag ever seen by the Indians of the west has been presented to Gov. Warren E. Hearnes by Lt. Gov. William S. Morris, chairman of the Missouri Lewis and Clark Trail Commission.

Such a flag, with 15 stripes and 15 stars, was carried by Lewis and Clark on their exploration that left St. Charles in the spring of 1804 and got back to St. Louis in the late summer of 1806.

The replica was made by Mrs. Chet Love of Astoria, Ore. who made identical flags for each of the 11 Lewis and Clark Trail states.

The governor has not decided where the flag and its explanatory plaque will be displayed permanently.

Dear Sir:

Referring to Adv. on Page 4, Feb. 9, 1970.

I was disappointed very much when I read the advertisement of the Buckner Ragsdale Co., but I believe they are going a little overboard with it. I don't think it's fair to the children that can't afford a uniform to be humiliated that they are not a good of a Boy Scout as the ones that do have a uniform; because this very reason is why I quit the Scouts when I was a boy.

I do agree with you on the local education methods. Keep up the good work. A Daily Standard Supporter.

HARD TO BEAT

Ruby Queen, the beet pictured, is an outstanding variety to grow, tastes best when harvested at half-grown stage.

Beets are hard to beat as a vegetable because they're good to look at and delicious to eat. Even youngsters with an aversion to other vegetables fill up on beets, especially if they're home grown and picked while still tiny and luscious.

Some varieties are grown not for their roots but for their quick-maturing leaves which many gourmets consider the most delicious of all greens.

But most gardeners use both tops and roots, serving them at the same time, as two different vegetables.

If you want beets for roots, you'll be interested in Ruby Queen for fine flavor; in Pacemaker because it is the first hybrid beet of table quality, sprouts quickly and is edible only 58 days from sowing.

You'll also want to know about the new golden beet which has golden roots instead of red ones and therefore doesn't bleed in the water when cooked.

The tops have a more delicate flavor than those of most red beets and will thus endear themselves to people who think beet greens are too "strong" in taste.

So, you see, there's a beet for every palate.

Schwartz was born Oct. 29, 1928, on his parents' farm east of his present location. He well remembers the reverses suffered by his father and farmer friends in the Great Depression. That experience has contributed to making him conservative and cautious in his present operation, he says.

"Another steady influence is the recollection of how I got started in the year I married," he says. "My wife, Genevieve, and I had $85 between us when we launched our farming career on 125 acres. We were aided by a loan from the Federal Land Bank, and I certainly still am grateful for that assistance." The improvements since 1960 are valued at about $100,000.

Schwartz considers it the luckiest day of his farming career when he turned to feeding cattle. "The fact is I like beef animals about as well as I don't like hogs," he says. "But then, to each his own preference.

"There is no question in my mind that a key ingredient to being a successful feeder is to start out with a liking for calves and fed out animals. You'd better be reconciled to taking years with good prices with those when they aren't so good. And I certainly endorse expansion on the basis of your own experience."

New Facilities Triple
Illmo Cattle Feedlot

ILLMO - Joe Schwartz, operator of one of Southeast Missouri's largest cattle feedlots, said today that it is too early to assess the overall results from virtually tripling his feedlot capacity with new equipment that went into use in January 1969.

Schwartz put in a total confinement system with automatic feeders, twin mounds with roofs and slats over a huge underground storage area for manure.

These facilities have worked out about as he anticipated, bringing the daily animal carrying capacity of the lot to more than 700 head, the 41-year-old farmer said. Last year, with his new facilities, he sold 1660 steers and heifers that were brought to market weight.

What has caught him completely by surprise is the nationwide attention that his operation has attracted, starting with a story on one phase of the equipment in a nationally circulated magazine.

Since then he has had a parade to his door. On Tuesday, for instance, a group of farmers and county agents came from all parts of Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas. He reviewed highlights of his operation for a

Missouri Cattle Feeding Seminar on Jan. 15 on the campus of the University of Missouri at Columbia.

"And would you believe," he adds with a wry smile, "that I get my share of visits from feed salesmen." They face a rough challenge because Schwartz produces almost all of his feed requirements on 750 acres he owns or rents.

For the improvement,

Schwartz contracted for two manure-pits each eight feet deep that can hold nearly 435,000 gallons of material. Because of the capacity, the operator only has to clean them twice a year, using the fertilizer for his grain fields. Slats are over the pits on each side of the belt-line feeder.

Dirt excavated to make the pits was used for the mounds on each side of the feed line. The cattle standing on the mounds work the manure down the slope into the pits.

The installation of the new facilities climaxed a steady expansion of the cattle feeding operation that started in 1955.

"I had been farming for five years by that time," he explains.

"My operation was centered on row crops. I'm not one who enjoys sitting down doing nothing, and I was casting about for something to do in the winter months.

"One year I had tried work off the farm, but there were disadvantages to that. Well, in 1955, I bought 17 heifers to feed out. I paid 19 cents for them and sold them the next spring for 16 cents a pound.

"However, it was an interesting experience, despite the prices. And I decided that it surely couldn't be this bad all the time. From the very outset, thought, I realized that cattle feeding has its ups and downs and a serious operator had better have some reserves for adversity."

In 1960, Schwartz built his

Dear Editor:

In the nearly 20 years that the National Council of Churches has been in existence, it has endorsed or has been involved in many un-American activities. Some of which are clearly classified as treason.

The 33 communions that comprise the council membership, along with Labor Unions and non-taxable foundations, pour millions of dollars into the NCC treasury, enabling them to carry on these projects.

I subscribe to the "Tempo", which is a twice monthly publication of the National Council of Churches. Their questionable actions are too numerous to list here, but two of their recent actions have been:

1. To endorse the "Black Manifesto"

2. To place representatives in Cairo, Ill., to "investigate" and to write about the conflict, which was completely biased (published in "Tempo")

This past week I received some information from the National Council of Churches' address in New York, soliciting funds for the committee which is called "Clergy and Laymen Concerned About Vietnam".

This group shows an overview of activities for the past year, 1969.

The following taken from their literature.

1. A Rev. Hayes, his wife and two children were sent to Sweden to be pastor to American Deserters there. Cost of his one year ministry was $26,325.00.

2. This group and other anti-war groups sponsored two days of protest in Washington D. C. Cost, $2,110.00.

3. The Episcopal Convention supported two AWOL service men who were flown secretly to Hawaii. Cost of the Convention Activities, $2,450.00.

4. This group supports twenty full time field staff workers in metropolitan centers of the nation. Cost, $63,230.00.

5. This group publishes "Issues and Actions" which reaches 30,000 persons eleven times a year. Cost, $32,015.00.

6. This group sponsors activities related to induction refusals, inspires support for draft resisters and assists men standing trial for selective service offenses.

I responded to their plea for a donation with a flat "no" along with other comments. One of which, I expressed my hopes and prayers that soon our churches would come to realize that we CAN continue our help for mankind without being a

Pollution-Free Exhausts May Hike Auto Prices

DETROIT (AP) — The type of exhaust system needed to meet 1975 federal antipollution goals may boost a car's retail cost by $200 to $300 a Chrysler Corp. engineer says.

Charles Heinen, chief engineer of emissions control and chemical development of Chrysler, said Wednesday Chrysler is only in the experimental stage of developing a system to meet the goals announced by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The only device Chrysler has that comes close to meeting the antipollution goals is a manifold-reactor type of afterburner, involving exhaust recirculation.

"This also requires a rich mixture and a fuel penalty of 10 to 15 per cent," Heinen said.

New federal goals call for eliminating almost 96 per cent of hydrocarbons in fuel, about 85 per cent of carbon monoxide, and control of nitrogen oxides, Heinen said.

He said Chrysler has introduced an exhaust system that allows for 85 per cent control of hydrocarbons and about 70 per cent of carbon monoxide.

He noted new systems for controlling nitrogen oxide would be introduced in next year's cars.

Heinen suggested, "If we can get the old cars off the road, we'll have a whale of an improvement. The question then is whether the country should spend additional money for marginal gains."
